

Call for papers: Re-Imagining the Human: Exploring Best Practice in Object-led work with Ethnographic Collections.

Dates: 28-29 November 2018

Venue: Garden Pavilion, Horniman Museum and Gardens, London, UK.

Conference Website: <https://www.horniman.ac.uk/visit/events/reimagining-the-human-a-two-day-conference-in-collaboration-with-icme>

ICME (International Committee for Museums and Collections of Ethnography) and the Horniman Museum and Gardens invite scholars and practitioners to explore innovative practices and theories in object-led work with ethnographic collections. Object-led practice can draw strongly on our ability to employ the senses to re-imagine our place in the world. In-depth engagement with ethnographic objects in particular can promote social interactions and critical reflections on the logics of power and prejudice upon which collections are constituted.

World Gallery_Credit: Horniman Museum and Gardens.

This two-day conference, organised in collaboration with ICOM national committees of Pakistan, Germany, Croatia and Norway, is informed by humanist anthropology, which starts from the experience of human actors, addressing what it means to be human and to live a human life. In ethnographic museums it supports and imagines diverse forms of public engagement and education and promotes activism. On the first day speakers will respond to the questions addressed by the conference. The second day follows a workshop format which translates into practice the debates explored using the Horniman's collection.

The Horniman has a long-standing interest in object-led practices and it is an ideal venue to examine this theme. A World Gallery of anthropology, opened in June 2018, celebrates human creativity, imagination and adaptability. In October we will launch the Studio, a new gallery curated with local community partners exploring the connections between socially engaged art and anthropology.

Keynote speaker Dr. Sandra Dudley will open the conference. Her research as a social and material anthropologist transects social anthropology, museum studies, and material culture studies.

Call for papers: We are particularly interested to hear from contributors whose research and/or practice engage with the following questions:

- How can ethnographic collections be used to examine or contest established notions of 'Self' and 'Other'?
- How can dialogical and/or affective engagement with ethnographic objects promote critical reflections on controversial issues (e.g. colonial legacies such as racism, ethnocentrism and primitivism, memory making, gender stereotypes)?
- To what extent can imaginative engagement with objects (through poetry, drawing, drama, dance, storytelling, music, etc) help challenge a fixed understanding of cultural identity and promote inter and transcultural dialogue?
- How can ethnographic museums use object-led practice to strengthen community collaboration and sense of ownership of collections?

- Deadline for submission: 1st of October 2018.
- 4 Fellowships available to cover conference fee and to match fund costs of travelling and accommodation.
- Please visit the conference website for more details.
<https://www.horniman.ac.uk/visit/events/reimagining-the-human-a-two-day-conference-in-collaboration-with-icme>

For more information please email to Dr. Domenico Sergi dsergi@horniman.ac.uk and Sylvia Wackernagel sylvia.wackernagel@gmail.com

